
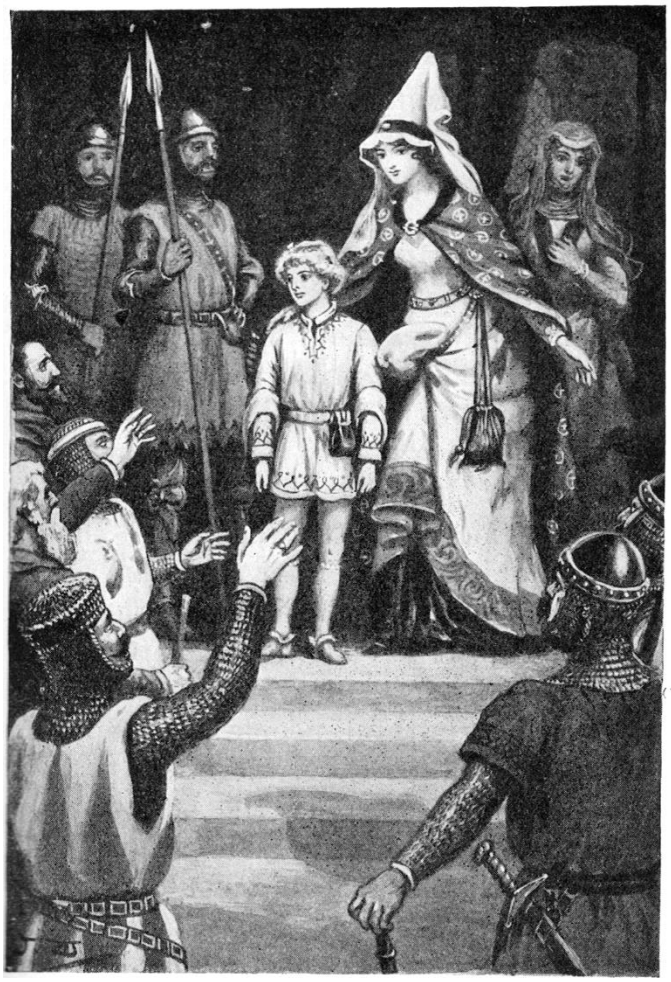
The Citizens of London Brought Young Edgar and the Keys of the City to William

Queen Margaret Had a Class of Children, Who Were Taught and Brought up under Her Care



Prince Arthur Brought before the Assembly

King Richard Meeting the Peasants at Mile End

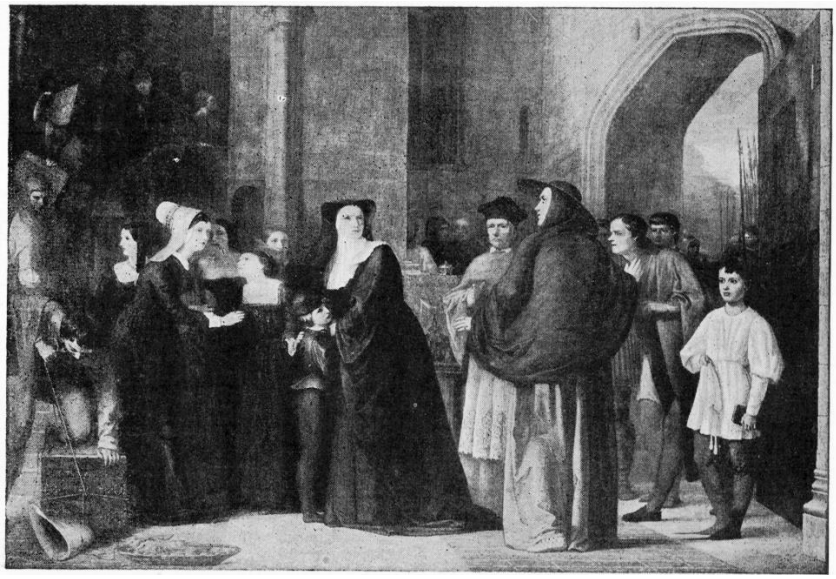
Arthur Defended Himself with a Wooden Bench

After the Battle of Shrewsbury

King Henry Examining the Plans for the Building of the School at Eton

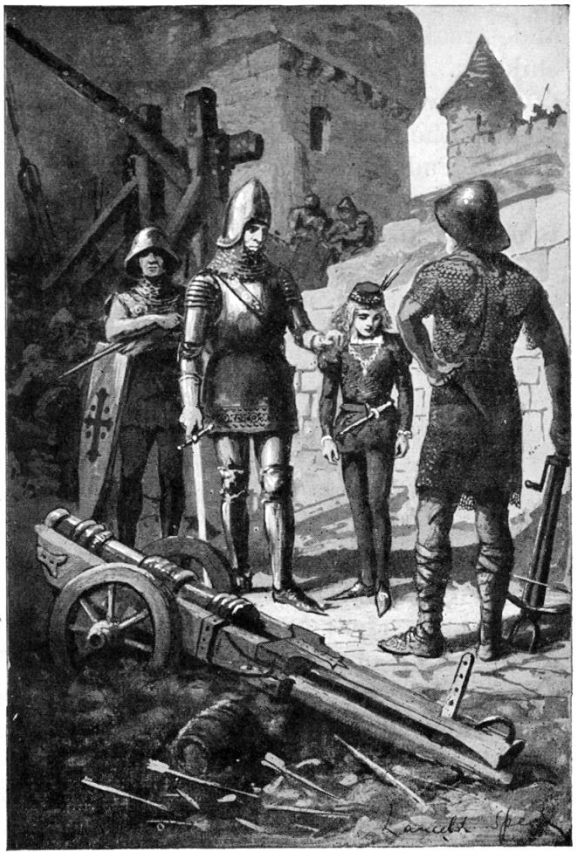
The Herald Threw Down the Gauntlet, Which Was at Once Taken up by Young Harry

Queen Margaret and the Robber

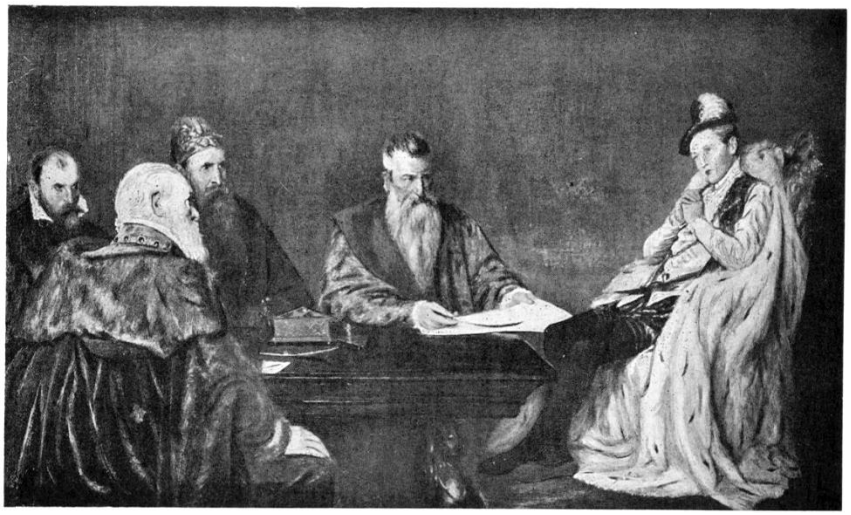


Archbishop Bouchier Asking Elizabeth to Give up the Young Duke of York

Edward V Entering London



The Capture of Young Henry Tudor at the Castle of Harlech in Wales



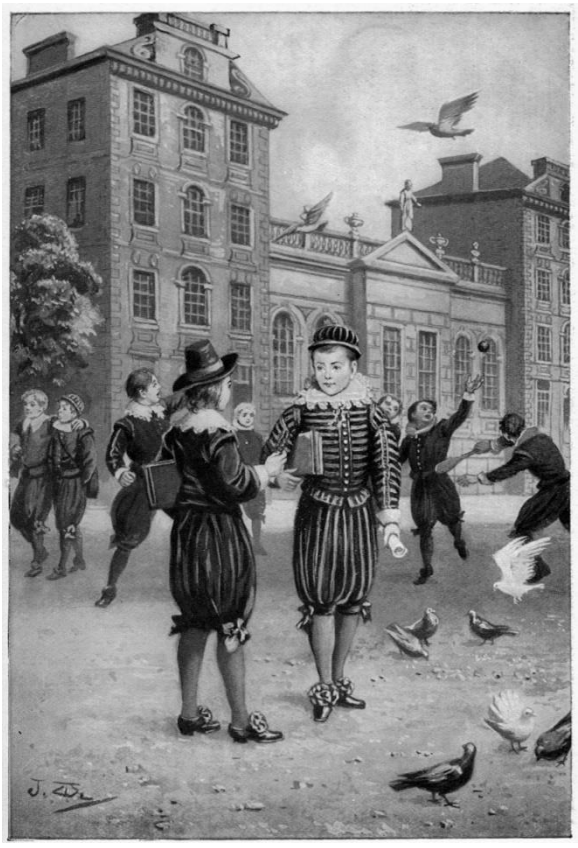
The Council Presenting a Paper for Edward VI to Sign

Lady Jane Grey in the Tower Watching Her Husband's Body . . .

Mary Queen of Scots and Her Son, James I

Henry, Duke of Gloucester

The Children of Charles I



John Milton at St. Paul's School, London

John Milton Going to Cambridge

Young Shovel Swam Past the Enemy's Line to Carry a Message to an English Warship

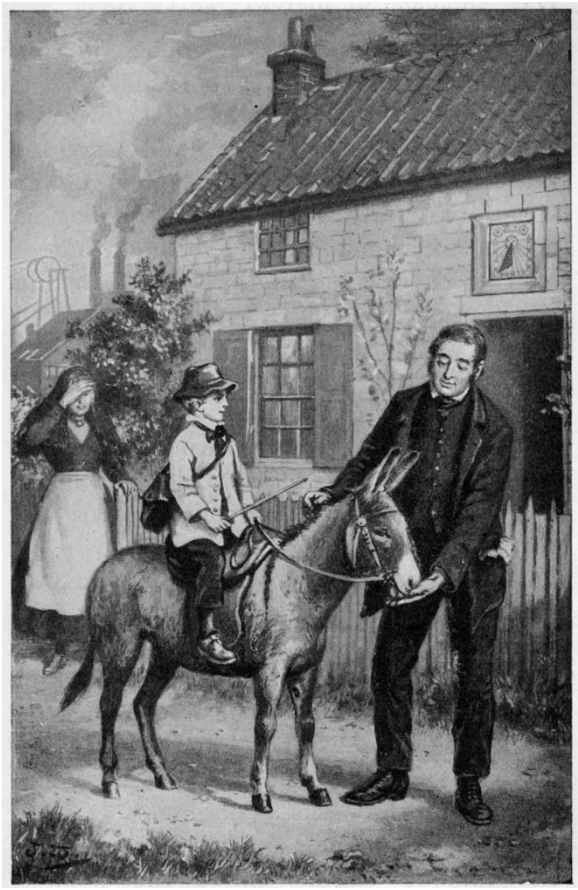
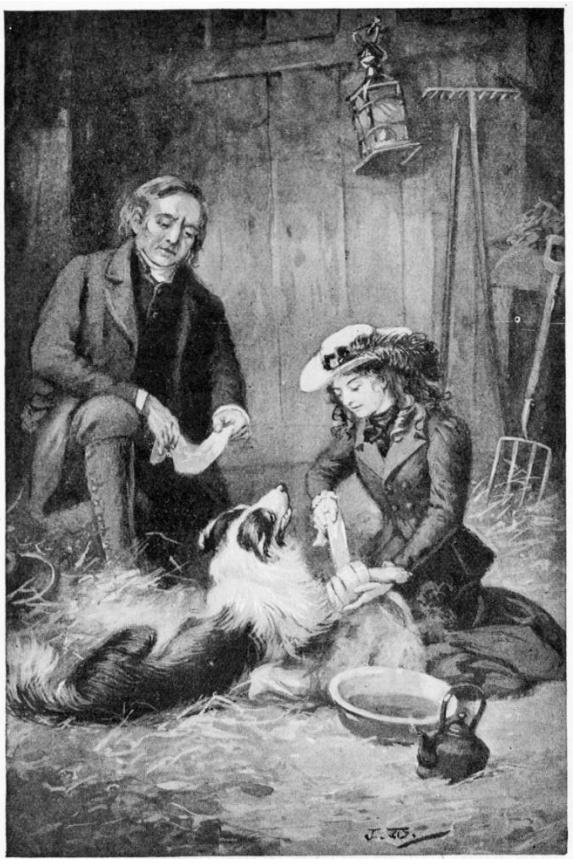
Newton and His Water-Clock

Newton’s Model Windmill

William Pitt Reciting at Home



Robert Stephenson Going to School



Florence Nightingale’s First Patient